

CAN'T KEEP HIS HANDS OFF THE GOODS

IRREPRESSIBLE GALLAGHER GETS 20 DAYS FROM JEROME JUSTICE.

(From Saturday's Daily)

After receiving his liberty from the county jail, where he was confined for 20 days for violating the law by carrying a dangerous weapon, John Gallagher, alias "Big Boy," was again arrested by Sheriff McGee and taken to the county jail. Gallagher, who was arrested at the same time as the other men who were arrested at the same time, was taken to the county jail. Gallagher, who was arrested at the same time as the other men who were arrested at the same time, was taken to the county jail. Gallagher, who was arrested at the same time as the other men who were arrested at the same time, was taken to the county jail.

McGee was released from the county jail and here June 20. He left the following day for the Copper City, where he commenced another criminal career under the name of Gallagher. The theft of the mine was reported to City Marshal Hawkins. Other thefts followed until finally the marshal ran the wily Gallagher to earth, finding the stolen goods in his possession. On the prisoner's arrival here the attention of the sheriff's office recognized him as McGee, who has been in the county jail for several offenses.

INDICTMENTS OF RICKETTS TO BE KILLED

(From Saturday's Daily)

Indictments for perjury and subornation against L. D. Ricketts and other residents of Globe will be dismissed July 13 by order of United States Attorney General Bonaparte.

This is the statement made here yesterday by United States District Attorney J. L. B. Alexander, to a Journal-Miner representative.

"In dismissing these indictments, I am acting under instructions recently received from Attorney General Bonaparte," he said. "Similar indictments were recently ordered dismissed in the New Mexico courts by order of the attorney general."

This action will bring to a close one of the most sensational cases in the Arizona courts in recent years.

Dr. L. D. Ricketts, general manager of the Cananea property, and one of the best known mining men in the west, was charged with subornation of perjury in that he secured several men to make fraudulent coal land entries in New Mexico. Robert Riel, Robert Stewart, and Miles Berry, all former employees of the Old Dominion Company at Globe, were indicted for perjury, it being charged that they made fraudulent entries in New Mexico lands for the benefit of the Phelps-Dodge Company. On account of the prominence of Ricketts his indictment on a serious charge attracted wide attention. He was released under a bond of $10,000 on each of the indictments, retaining some of the shrewdest lawyers in the southwest, including Judge A. C. Baker of Phoenix, to act in his defense.

At one time it looked as if Ricketts and those charged with him would defeat the indictments on technical grounds, but United States Attorney Alexander prevented this, and the cases were continued.

In connection with the order of United States Attorney Bonaparte to dismiss the indictments, it is said that this has only been decided upon after the agreement of the Phelps-Dodge people to make full reparation to the government in the matter of any loss it may have sustained through the filing by the defendants on any lands in New Mexico.

Recently in the New Mexico courts several indictments against Phelps-Dodge employees, similar to those against the Globe defendants, were dismissed by the United States attorney on orders from Attorney General Bonaparte.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE MILDRED TO BE PUSHED

(From Wednesday's Daily)

So well pleased is F. H. Dimmick, a leading stockholder of the Mildred Gold Mining Company, with the development of the company's property on the west slope of Rich Hill in the Weaver district, where he has a force of men engaged the last five weeks in taking out a test shipment of ore, putting up camp buildings and making other improvements, that he and his associates have decided to inaugurate a larger scheme of development involving the sinking of the 80 foot working shaft, now on the ground, several hundred feet deeper and exploring the ore bodies by drifts and crosscuts for each hundred foot level.

Besides installing a hoist, repairing a road to the shaft, constructing buildings, he has twelve tons of shipping ore sacked on the dump, several tons more of the same character of ore out, and thirty-five tons of second class ore, which will be treated in the mill which it is the purpose of the concern to install later.

"It is no intention to sink the shaft and open the veins extensively by adits and drifts," Mr. Dimmick will tell a Journal-Miner representative at the St. Michael yesterday. "The work already done indicates that very large bodies of rich ore will be encountered deeper down. In fact, the present showing is far better than anticipated. In one of the drifts, a shaft ledge was tapped containing a big deposit, the extent of which has not been determined yet as neither wall has been found in the gossams being run each way. The tips of the ledges indicate that both will come together with depth, forming one great ore body. When the work of sinking is well under way preparations will be made to install a mill to treat the product."

Mr. Dimmick is accompanied here by two R. Gomers, who located the principal claim of the group of nine located in 1875. He was first attracted to it 35 years ago by listening to an account of its early history when it was discovered in the 60's by Charles D. Jones, who extracted a fortune from its ores by the arastra process. After locating the ground, Mr. Gomer built an arastra and worked the area at a profit, shipping the rich sulphides struck at water level. The ledge is believed to be a continuation of the rich vein which made the Johnson mine famous all over the west and out of which some of the richest gold ore ever discovered in the Rocky mountain ranges has been taken. This ledge is generally considered to be the source of the rich placer fields on Rich Hill and the surrounding country, out of which millions of dollars in gold has been mined since the discovery of the rich placers on Rich Hill in the 60's.

O'NEILL IS AFTER MARK SMITH'S SCALP

(From Wednesday's Daily)

That Mark Smith's followers in Yavapai county will not have smooth sailing before the coming territorial convention, to be held here August 8, is apparent from the statements made here yesterday by Eugene Brady O'Neill of Phoenix, who stopped over here on his way home after attending a meeting of the Knights of Columbus in Flagstaff.

"I find that there is practically no democratic party in Yavapai county," the candidate for congressional honors said to a Journal-Miner representative.

"The old time organization is divided into at least six factions, with no leader of any stamina or ability in any. I am coming back here in a week or ten days to open an aggressive campaign and mean to carry the primaries. I am satisfied that delegates to the county convention to select delegates to the territorial convention will be ordered selected by primaries by the county central committee. This will give me a chance to do business in Yavapai county. I consider that I have practically no following here now, but when I get through with some of the so-called leaders there may be a different story."

"I am familiar with the records of some of the so-called leaders and intend to expose them. Just wait and see the result," he concluded as he hurriedly mounted a platform of the southbound when the conductor shouted, "All aboard!"

O'Neill spent yesterday here circulating among his constituents. He said that he was satisfied that the central committees of some of the counties would select the delegates to the territorial convention and expected no consideration from them.

LIBERAL SUPPLIES BRING PRICES DOWN

BY J. A. RICKART.

Kansas City Stock Yards, July 9.—The liberal supply of 12,000 cattle, in the 7,000 calves, arrived last week, and as supplies at all points were nearly gone, prices fell 20 to 30 cents for the week. Choice fed steers had only 10 to 15 cents, while grass steers suffered the greatest loss. Cows and buffers have been scarce, but buyers insist that such prices are still too high. However, the top of cattle is moderate here today at $10.00 head, and light steers, with the head, that buyers are taking here, with steers 15 to 25 pounds, and the stuff to higher. Stockers and feeders held steady to strong all of last week, on account of scarcity, and are a little higher today. Steers from the Panhandle country have begun to come, several strings lately bringing $1.75 to $1.50. Movement from Kansas pastures is fairly free, Westerns weighing from 1000 to 1200 selling at $3.50 to $3.75. Prime fed steers command a high premium, tops worth $8.00 to $8.25. About 200 car loads of stock and feeding cattle were brought here last week and shipped to the country, stockers mostly at $3.25 to $3.60, feeders $4.00 to $4.50, with a few choice feeders at $5.00 to $5.25, market on them strong to 10 higher today.

The sheep market began to look up the middle of last week, and 15 to 20 cents was added by the close of the week. Run is 5000 head here today, market sharply higher, spring lambs 25 to 40 cents above the close of last week and $1.00 higher than a week ago, several sales today at $6.40 to $7.80. Some Colorado grass ewes sold at $3.85 today, similar to the kind that went at $2.50 or less last week, and medium grade Texas ewes sold today at $3.60 Texas and Arizona wethers worth $3.90 to $4.15. There is a good demand for stock and feeding sheep at $4.00 to $4.75, and for feeding lambs at $4.50 to $4.75. The Texas movement is about over, and only a limited number of Arizonas remain to come.

LITTLEFIELD TO TAKE STUMP FOR REPUBLICANS

WASHINGTON, July 7.—Representative Charles E. Littlefield of Maine, who has resigned his seat in congress to take effect September 1, is not yet out of politics. He said today while he was here on a business trip from New York. He will make numerous campaign speeches after the national fight warms up.

The interesting thing about his announcement that, although he has resigned his position in the house to practice law, he will still fight political battles, is that the republican managers will rely on him to do the fighting wherever organized labor resists the republican ticket and candidates. Their decision arises from the hostility that has long existed between Littlefield and Labor.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, is his bitterest foe. Twice the forces of Labor have said they would "get his scalp" in the election in his Maine district, and twice Littlefield has beaten them. But, when he resigned his place last spring, Gompers and his lieutenants were loud in their declarations that their fighting him so fiercely had been the cause of his withdrawal.

Now comes the sequel to this enmity. Littlefield is in politics and has offered his services to the campaign leaders of his party. They have been glad enough to accept them, for he is recognized as one of the most brilliant orators and one of the most effective stump speakers in the country. Remembering the delight Littlefield has taken in fighting labor in the past, they have made up their minds to give him ample opportunity to indulge in this line of work next fall. That he will accept their invitation is not doubted.

For the past four years, the Maine representative has consistently championed in the House the side of the legislation which labor did not want. He has not attempted to restrain himself in his attacks on labor unions and their demands. In like manner, Gompers has retaliated, saying, among other things, that Littlefield had a "yellow streak up his back a yard wide."

It is not strange, therefore, that next fall will find Littlefield once more fighting his old foe. He likes it. A fighter by nature, he delights in the combat when he has been provoked to it, and organized labor has certainly been on the job with the prodding so far as he has been concerned.

The republican campaign managers are glad of his assistance because they say they have found that, in some quarters, the labor unions may stand up to their threats to fight the national candidates of republicanism. This is especially true in view of the manner in which Bryan and his friends have come out in favor of the demands of Gompers at Denver. But the republicans feel assured that the full vote of organized labor will go neither to the one party nor to the other. They claim that the head of the federation cannot swing the vote of such a tremendous body by his mere dictation issued from Washington.

It is for this reason that they believe they can have a great influence on the labor vote by sending into the field their best speakers and using their every resource in the districts and states where the opposition of labor will not be to any perceptible force.

At present, their plan is to use Littlefield almost exclusively in the New England states, Pennsylvania, and a few of the far western states, where the labor union sentiment is especially strong. In the west, Littlefield may be for a while one of the companies speaking of Sherman when the vice presidential nominee makes his tour of that section of the country.

H. G. COYKENDALL ELECTED THE CAPTAIN OF COMPANY E

NEW COMMANDER CONSIDERED ONE OF BEST TACTICIANS IN ORGANIZATION.

(From Saturday's Daily)

H. G. Coykendall was elected captain of Company E of the Arizona National Guard at an election held in the company's armory on Cortez street Thursday night at 9 o'clock. Captain Coykendall succeeds Captain Anderson, the first commanding officer of the company, who recently resigned. There were three candidates for the position. Thirty-one votes were cast. Captain Coykendall received 18, First Lieutenant H. A. Cameron nine and E. J. Mitchell four.

The newly elected captain is well qualified for the position. He has several years' experience in the national guard and is considered among the best tacticians in the company. The company is in good shape financially. Guns and uniforms are expected to arrive in a few days.

PORTABLE HOUSES FOR CAMP OF EMPORIA

(From Wednesday's Daily)

Five portable houses, recently purchased by the New York syndicate owning and developing the Emporia mine, seven miles south of the city, arrived at the depot here yesterday from Saginaw, Michigan, being only eleven days in transit. The houses will be hauled at once to the mine and erected. The five houses comprise a commodious cook house and dining room, a bunk house, dwellings for the general manager and superintendent and of ice building. Other buildings, similarly constructed, will be erected later as occasion demands.

The ore showing in the shaft is improving in depth and in every way satisfactory to the management. The shaft is now fifty feet deep. A new hoisting plant is under installation and the company will start a force of men today sinking a well and preparing a site for a large water tank to be erected which will furnish water to the hoisting plant and the camp buildings to which it will be piped. It is the intention of the management to have every living comfort at the camp, making it an ideal residence place for the company's employees and their families.

Richard J. Lynch, general manager of the mine, who was here yesterday, in conversation with a Journal-Miner representative, said that the work of development of the property would be pushed as fast as possible and that he expected to have a mill in operation there before many months. "The showing in the mine justifies the installation of a small plant now," he said. "With the ledge opened deeper the character of the plant best suited to the economic treatment of the ores will be decided and a plant installed. In my opinion Yavapai county will be able to boast of another gold producer in the Emporia mine before another year rolls around."
